Remi Savard is an up and coming jazz pianist from Montpelier. He performs with and leads groups across Vermont, including doing a weekly residency at Sarducci's during the summer. Remi studies music and biology at The University of Vermont.

Jeremy Hill is one of Vermont's top double bassists. Hailing from Waterbury and teaching in Waitsfield, he is one of the area's finest jazz musicians and has been a part of the Stowe Jazz Festivals' after-hours house band at Doc Ponds with the Sklarkestra every year of the festival.

Peter Schmeeckle grew up in Barre, Seattle, and Los Angeles. He has been active in the jazz scenes in Honolulu, LA, Seattle, and San Diego. For the past six years he has worked as a freelance percussionist, and teaches multiple instruments out of the Stowe Music Center.
